Anne Ludes Named Director of Secondary Education

Dr. Robert A. Tremblay, Superintendent of Schools, and the Office of Teaching and Learning of the Framingham Public Schools are pleased to announce the appointment of Anne Ludes as the Director of Secondary Education for the coming academic year.

Anne comes to central office from Framingham High School where she most recently served as the Associate Principal. Prior to serving the high school in that leadership capacity, Anne was the Department Head for Mathematics where she taught for 11 years.

A strong and vocal advocate for students, Anne believes that all students are capable of high levels of thinking and learning. She is passionate about the art and practice of teaching, and sets high expectations for students and staff. She strives to create opportunities for students to acquire and strengthen transferable 21st Century skills, including problem solving, collaboration, grit and perseverance. Anne's work ethic coupled with her experience make her a welcome addition to the Office of Teaching and Learning administrative staff.

Anne earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Mathematics and Secondary Education from Providence College and a Master of Arts degree in Mathematics from Boston College.
