

Connecting You to the Right Support

What is it?

Behavioral Health Partners of MetroWest (BHPMW) is a new entity that will make it easier to access a continuum of high quality behavioral health, community development, and social services in Greater MetroWest.

Who are the partners?

The partnership draws on the long-standing mutual respect and clinical strengths of the four partner agencies: Advocates, South Middlesex Opportunity Council (SMOC), Spectrum Health Systems, and Wayside Youth & Family Support Network. Collectively, the partners encompass expertise in mental health, substance use, housing, and other social supports for people of all ages.

What is the goal?

The goal of this partnership is to improve the community's health outcomes through better access and coordination of care.

Why now?

Change is underway in the world of health care. This partnership enhances our ability to provide individuals and families with the best possible care, as we partner with health plans, primary care practices, accountable care organizations, and other new funders in the changing health care landscape. We will be poised to continue to provide high quality services to our communities without skipping a beat.
